Handouts, Real-Life Examples, Lots of Humor, Candid Conversation, Innovative Practice

Rick Wormeli brings innovation, energy, validity and high standards to both his presentations, and his instructional practice, including more than 25 years of teaching. He is 2008 Winner of the "NELMS James P. Garvin Distinguished Service Award". With his substantive presentations, sense of humor, and unconventional approaches, he presents nationally and internationally.

"[Rick] is a visionary for middle level learning," said Mary Childress, former NELMS board chair. "He is passionate about teaching and serious about how important quality education is for our adolescents, but always delivers his message with a fabulous, laugh out loud, sense of humor," she added.

What attendees say about Rick:

- "This was incredibly validating. Great information and application… practical information (with data and theory to support) the implementation."
- "We are indeed fortunate to have national level speakers in our own backyard through NELMS' efforts. Rick's presentation was phenomenal, timely, and extremely beneficial for all middle level educators."
- "Excellent job!! I cannot wait to put many of these ideas into practice in my classroom when I get back to school."
- "Rick's passion for students and the profession of teaching is evident in his humor and dynamic presentation style.
